NOTICES FOR RECEPTION PARENTS

Maths Games

Rabbits and Foxes: Please return all maths games on Thursday 22nd February.

Space Food

After half term, children will be exploring what it must be like to live in space. They will have the opportunity to taste 'astronaut fruit' and compare it to fruit we eat on Earth. Children will be eating fresh and freeze-dried bananas and strawberries. Please let your child's teacher know if your child suffers from allergies and you do not wish them to sample the fruit.

Product Description

Freeze-dried ready-to-eat peaches. Enjoy your fruit just as the astronauts do - the freeze-dried way! Astronaut Peaches, as well as other freeze-dried food items, have been aboard space missions since the early Mercury Missions. They continue to be used on NASA missions today. How does it look and taste? Freeze-drying is like suspended animation because it keeps the fruit totally intact, but without the water. As you eat the fruit, your mouth rehydrates the peaches, restoring it to its original state. Freeze-dried peaches can be stored for many years without refrigeration as long as you keep them in an airtight, sealed container.

We are collecting:

- Junk modelling. (Junk modelling is very popular with our children and our stocks are very low!) Please remember not to include anything that has contained nuts/sesame seed products.
- Foil.
- Any broken/unwanted small appliances or items with screw/nuts/bolts.
